

hang [hæŋ]
 hanger ['hæŋə]
 hook [hʊk]

hang / hanged / hanged [hæŋ / hæŋd / hæŋd] – a person
hang / hung / hung [hæŋ / hʌŋ / hʌŋ] – wet towels and things

During a stay in a hotel what do they usually ask people to do with the towels?

During a stay in a hotel they usually ask people to put dirty towels on the floor and hang clean towels on a hook.

What can we hang on a hanger and on a hook?

We can hang clothes on a hanger and towels on a hook.

What did they do with murderers in the old times?

In the old times they usually hanged murderers in public.

Do you agree that murderers should be hanged?

Yes, I agree that murderers should be hanged.

hang on [hæŋ ɒn]
 hang up [hæŋ ʌp]

ring a bell [rɪŋ ə bel] If something rings a bell, it seems to you that you have heard it before.

If someone rings you up but you don't want to have a conversation, what do you do?

If someone rings me up but I don't want to have a conversation, I hang up.

What can you ask people to do if you want them to wait for you?

I can ask people to hang on if I want them to wait for me.

What do we say when we think we remember someone's name but not very well?

We say that the person's name rings a bell, if we remember it but not very well.