

First World Obligation

(Image courtesy of xedos4 / FreeDigitalPhotos.net)

Activity:

Talk about the differences between what is considered a First World country and a Third World country.

Debate concerning the responsibility of First World countries to help Third World countries.

Consider the following statement: First World countries have an obligation to help Third World countries with funds and assistance in cases of hunger and poverty. This is true because of the First World's advantageous position attained by its exploiting the resources of the Third World in the past and present.

Take a side: Argue for extensive First World responsibility or for Limited responsibility.

You can see the whole lesson from your teacher, please ask them to send it to you before the class.

テキスト全文はレッスン受講時に担当講師よりお受け取りください。