Reading

The term "generation gap" was coined by sociologists and anthropologists in the 1960's and is often still used today. One concept of the generation gap is that parents and offspring have different values and beliefs. As a result, many parents fear that they will lose influence with children when peer opinions become highly valued.

Parents and their children find it hard to learn from each other, so they point their fingers at each other instead. Grown children often boast a better education and more secure finances than their parents, while the older generation may be richer in experience. How can we better get the two age groups to understand and appreciate the advantages of the other? We all have a responsibility
