

Press

Image courtesy of digitalart / FreeDigitalPhotos.net

Reading

Apart from the television, the press is the most important source of information nowadays. A lot of people read newspapers every day. Those who do not do it regularly, usually buy weeklies to enjoy reading on Saturday or Sunday. Many readers claim that they prefer papers to television for the simple reason that they have more time to concentrate on the news.

Everyone wants to be well informed about what is happening in the world. Many news agencies have their foreign correspondents in almost all parts of the world. The journalists have to select the information and cover the most important events. The news is then spread by agencies and published in papers.

You can see the whole lesson from your teacher, please ask them to send it to you before the class.

テキスト全文はレッスン受講時に担当講師よりお受け取りください。