

Genitive Case

Genitive case

Genitive case is the grammatical case that marks a noun as modifying another noun. It often marks a noun as being the possessor of another noun; however, it can also indicate various other relationships than possession.

Examples:

- Janet's long fingers, Janet's jacket, Janet's drink (relationship indicating possession)
- a wheel of cheese (a relationship indicating composition)
- the love of music (participation in an action)
- men of Rome (origin)
- the capital of the Republic (reference)
- man of honor (description)

You can see the whole lesson from your teacher, please ask them to send it to you before the class.

テキスト全文はレッスン受講時に担当講師よりお受け取りください。