

Giving and Receiving

www.shutterstock.com · 92424922

Making a Formal Argument

Directions: Answer the question below using a formal argument. In a formal argument, you must:

- 1) State your position.
- 2) Provide point(s) that support your position.
- 3) Support each point with specific reasons/examples.

Statement: It is better to give than to receive.

Example Answer: I agree with the statement above. Studies have shown that acts of selflessness reduce stress and increase self-confidence. People who care for the needs of other people do not focus as much on the things they lack. And people who are selfless are more involved socially, which is good for their health and mood. On the other hand, sometimes it is good to receive as well. If you are sick, sad, or in need, it is comforting to have the support of friends. It is good to both give to and receive from people who are important to you.

You can see the whole lesson from your teacher, please ask them to send it to you before the class.

テキスト全文はレッスン受講時に担当講師よりお受け取りください。