

Teenage Slang

- Emo – If you're "all emo," it's like being a drama queen (a slightly older expression.) Emo was a type of music that seemed to rip at the souls of adolescent angst. It frequently included wearing all black clothing, dying one's hair pitch black, and having a complexion so paper white that it looked as if the teen had grown up in the basement.

To be emo was to be perpetually depressed, moody, and emotional, and perpetually at odds with society (even if it was nothing more than a pose.)

- My bad – If a teen has made a mistake, the phrase "my bad" is frequently employed as a cover. It means what it appears to mean: "I was bad!"
